

Tax and legal consultancy

Did you know that in the UK you cannot open a bank account with an automatic overdraft facility? Or that in France you can only have a telephone line installed if you have a French bank account – but that to open a bank account you have to prove that you have paid a personally addressed telephone bill? Have you ever filed a tax declaration in Dutch? Or in Thai? How would you verify the figures submitted by your tax advisor in a foreign language?

Your contact for legal and tax questions

Work permit, visa, bank account, home rental, insurance cover, pension, tax – if you have been assigned abroad by a multinational company, you can usually rely on your employer for assistance with these matters. But what happens when you are opening a branch office in another country, or if you are setting out completely on your own, perhaps on retirement?

The solution is to turn to ASN and its partners. We can clarify your needs and coordinate the necessary consultants, helping you avoid time-consuming and costly misunderstandings. By working together with our carefully selected partners, we can optimally plan and assist your stay abroad, and even take care of those awkward matters that fall between work and private life.

This is what we can provide

- Individual advice on international assignments
- Comprehensive, personal tax advice
- Guidance on worldwide social security
- Assistance with visas and work permits
- Information on international contract law
- Recommendations on succession, inheritance and gift tax regulations

Whether you want to supplement the arrangements of your (future) employer, or obtain independent third-party advice on making your own provisions, ASN will be there for you at every point in your career, and for every aspect of living abroad.

Please note that these services are provided on a fee basis.
